The company

Are you someone who has pharmaceutical or medical device experience and is looking for the next step in your career at an international level? Are you someone who enjoys speaking with healthcare professionals and also contributing to a product's commercial success?

Here is a rare and great opportunity to join a truly multinational manufacturer and be part of this company's new product portfolios in the DACH region and internationally. As the Medical Affairs Manager, you will be reporting directly to their Team Leader in Germany and work in a German and English bilingual environment, at one of the company's most important teams located in Germany.

The role

This exciting position will give you the opportunity to work and develop your knowledge across all of the company's products in pharmaceuticals, medical devices, and consumer health.

You will be responsible for improving the company's DACH and global commercial strategy by educating and enabling the commercial teams and other internal stakeholders. And using your scientific knowledge to help with the company's scientific publications, and build a network of KOLs and healthcare professionals and identify the right product position on the market. Furthermore, you will be responsible for representing the company at international congresses and conferences and carry out training with external stakeholders.

Your responsibilities:

As the Medical Affairs Manager you will:

- Supporting medical affairs activities for the company's 3 main product groups (pharmaceuticals, medical devices, and consumer health) - for example: medical claims
- Educate and enable the company's commercial & marketing teams and improve commercial strategy in the DACH region and globally
- Supporting data collection and data generation for the company's publications
- Build and manage a network of KOLs and healthcare professionals in the DACH region
- Show leadership by planning and leading Scientific Advisory Board meetings
- Represent the company at international conferences and congresses
- Approving marketing materials and supporting medical writing activities

Your qualifications:

For this Medical Affairs Manager, you will bring:

- At least 2 years in a medical affairs or medical liaison role with a pharmaceutical or medical device manufacturer
- Professional language proficiency in German and English
- Eligible to live and work in Germany
